Establishing a shared identity is an important part of any process of peace and reconciliation. This book discusses issues and theories of identity formation that can be implemented for peace and reconciliation from the perspectives of theology and religious studies, whilst interacting with politics, socio-cultural studies and economics. By focusing on the theme of peace and reconciliation, and employing an interdisciplinary approach, this volume will make a significant contribution to the discussion of the situation of the Korean peninsula, and wider global contexts. It explores theoretical issues such as political and economic implications of reconciliation; interfaith and biblical perspectives; and the role of religion in peace making. The contributors examine practical implications of the theme in the contexts of Germany, Northern Ireland, South Africa, India, East Asia, Bosnia-Herzegovina and the Korean peninsula, and offer invaluable insights for policy-makers, academics, and lay leaders. The book is an important tool for researchers and students of theology, religion, sociology, politics and history.

Contents: Introduction, Sebastian C.H. Kim, Pauline Kollontai and Greg Hoyland; Establishing a shared identity: the role of the healing of memories and of narrative, Robert Schreiter; What does common identity cost? Some German experiences and provocative questions, Gerhard Sauter; Truth and reconciliation: an interfaith perspective from India, Israel Selvanaygam; Peace and reconciliation: Biblical themes in the East Asian context, Choong Chee Pang; Religion as a tool for waging peace: theoretical perspectives in the context of Bosnia-Herzegovina, Pauline Kollontai; Embracing a threatening other: identity and reconciliation in Northern Ireland, Cecelia Clegg; Towards reconciliation and justice in South Africa: can church unity make a difference?, Nico Koopman; Korean War: the origin of the axis of evil in the Korean peninsula, Jooseop Keum; Towards peace and reconciliation between South and North Korean churches: contextual analysis of the 2 churches, In Soo Kim; Strategies for peace and reunification in Korea, Jung-Sun Noh; Reconciliation possible? The churches’ efforts toward the peace and reunification of North and South Korea, Sebastian C.H. Kim; Appendices; Index. Includes 1 line drawing

Sample pages for published titles are available to view online at: www.ashgate.com